MAY LAND PLANT

Mass Meeting at Gurnee on Monday Evening Results in Good Work

OVER 150 CITIZENS ATTEND

Committee Appointed to Probe Affairs of Roller Bearing Company and will do Active Work to Locate Plant

As a result of a mass meeting held Monday night in the fog and damp at Gurnee Woodman hall Messrs. Hawkins, Ralph Chittenden and McClure have been appointed to probe the affairs of the Automatic Roller Bearing Company, the concern that seeks a location at Gurnee, and if this committee of Gurnee citizens finds the roller bearing proposition as good as it appears further arrangements will be made to locate the plant.

The scheme to finance the site proposition and bring the company to Waukegan, or West Waukegan, which is the right name for the Greater Waukegan factory district, is in brief as follows:

1—If the plant locates at Gurnee, according to Promoter Ballou, it will erect a building with 20,000 square feet of floor space and equip it at a cost of about $200,000 employing from sixty to one hundred men at first. If the roller bearing has the market that it seems sure to have, the plant will be increased to 2500 men and two or three million dollars within five years, wherever it locates.

2—Robert D. Wynn, speaking of means of getting the plant located at Gurnee, wishes 400 acres of Gurnee land which will be used for factory sites. The Automatic Roller Bearing Company will be given 20 acres. The entire tract is valued at $80,000.

3—The company will be given $60,000 by the first of April and $20,000 will be used to subdivide the land and put the syndicate on a substantial basis.

4—The company will get a part of the factory site land which will be to the south of the tract and between the two railroads. Then the remaining 300 acres will be divided into lots 50 by 130 to sell at $300 each, 1500 lots in all.

5—Six hundred of these will be sold, Waukegan to take half according to Mr. Wynn's promise, and Gurnee the other half. The proceeds, $180,000, will more than pay the necessary $160,000 to land the company at Gurnee, and leave $20,000 in the treasury.

6—The remaining 900 lots will be sold later, half of the proceeds to go to the roller company as a special inducement to locate at Gurnee and the other half to go to the promotion of the territory assigned for factory sites.

This is the plan in detail.

The party from Waukegan included President Butchard of the Automatic Roller Bearing Company, Inventor George, Vice President Payne, Promoter Ballou, Capitalist Forsythe, the financial end of the company, and Mr. R. D. Wynn and Attorney Claire C. Edwards. Other Waukeganites attended.

One hundred and fifty Gurnee people were at the meeting and displayed keen interest. Inventor George told of his invention and answered questions regarding it. President Butchard told why he wishes to locate at Gurnee, of his former residence as preacher, of his liking for Gurnee. Promoter Ballou then told of the plans of the company.

Mr. Wynn was then introduced and revealed what was necessary to bring the plant to Gurnee, presenting the comprehensive scheme explained above.

After Mr. Wynn Attorney Edwards and Attorney Dady, state's attorney-elect and a native of Gurnee, spoke, Mr. Dady suggesting formal organization of the Gurnee citizens for the transaction of business as a result of which Mr. Hughes was made chairman.

The whole sense of the day is that the matter is "up to Gurnee and Waukegan now."

BESLEY BREWING COMPANY

Creditors Ask for Receiver but Petition is Denied for a Time

Officials of the Besley Brewing company of Waukegan appeared before Judge Bethea in the United States district court at Chicago, Tuesday morning, and asked for a continance until some later date not mentioned.

They then arranged a meeting with the creditors who filed a petition for a receiver and were closited in conference all day in an effort to reach a settlement by which the proceedings will end in a dismissel, the continuance being granted. The settlement is not yet made and the matter may come up at any time.

Creditors of the Besley's Waukegan Brewery company filed a petition in bankruptcy against the company and asked the judge to appoint a receiver for the concern. The court postponed action.

The creditors alleged that the company is insolvant, having liabilities to the amount of $65,000 or $70,000, while the assets are estimated at from $30,000 to $40,000.

The petitioners, P. Pause & Co., the Western Electric company and J. C. Gooding, maintain that mismanagement, and the payment of preferred creditors, prompt their action.

The petition for declaration of bankruptcy was filed Saturday but suppressed for service. It is said that the movement has long been brewing and maintain that the brewery interests could have been helped had a receiver been asked when W. E. Bender resigned instead of at this time.

The Besley Brewery was founded in 1853 by the late William Besley who operated it with his sons until his death some years ago. Four years ago the directors determined on the manufacture of beer against the counsel of J. W. Besley, while heretofore only ale and porter had been made.

CARP SEININGS ARE NOW IN PROGRESS

The annual ceremony of clearing the lakes of carp has begun and has reached its climax in Lake county where the big fish abound and the record catch of many years, was that of Friday when John Converse's outfit of nets and men made a haul of 6,000 pounds or three tons.

Converse is cleaning Fox and Long lakes of carp, which are claimed to eat the spawn of other fish. This is disputed however, and four fish cut up at Long lake Friday showed that the carp had eaten nothing but vegetable growths of the lake, which is swept slick and clean of sea weed.

The catches run from one to three tons a day of late and the fish themselves run from seven to thirty pounds, a thirty-six pounder being all that a man can hold in his arms.

The carp are seined from the lake by gangs of ten men to each end of the net each year on state contract.

The fish are shipped to large cities where they are used as food, served in restaurants in many guises, such as planked white fish or are canned as salmon.

PLEURISY CAUSED DEATH

A postmortem and inquest was held Sunday at Half Day over the remains of Riley Young, who died there sometime Saturday night. The post mortem showed that pleurisy had caused the mans death.

Young had been working at Half Day for the past year and a half, doing little odd jobs about the village.

A few days ago he went to work for J. F. Horenberger, a hotel keeper. Saturday afternoon he complained of a pain in his side. In the evening the pain grew worse and at ten o'clock Dr. Tracy was called. He left about midnight and the patient seemed considerably improved.

At four o'clock in the morning Mr. Horenberger found Young awake, but at six o'clock when the proprietor came down Young was dead. Mr. Young was about forty years old.

Salt Purification.

Salt is purified by melting in the new and rapid English process. The crude rocksalt is fed automatically to a table contained in a large furnace, is then fused and runs into troughs, from which it is drawn at one side of the furnace into large cauldrons. Air is forced into the molten mass and lime is added. The impurities sink to the bottom, and the upper portion is ground and screened while the lower part is used for chemical manure.

In Need of Teachers.

A shortage of 1,200 school teachers is reported in Oklahoma. The cause is said to be the small salaries of women teachers. The club women declare that if the salaries of the women teachers were made to equal those of the men the shortage would cease to exist. In the meantime women out of employment are looking to Oklahoma for places during the coming school term.

SEEKS GRAVE IN LAKE

George H. Tiffany Weights Pockets With Stone and Jumps Off Pier

LAST SCION OF OLD FAMILY

Informed That Annuity Fund Was Depleted Read Sea Tale of Drowning, and Going to Lake Ended Life

The trust fund left by his widowed mother, by which his board was paid and from which he was paid seventy-five cents a week, being nearly exhausted, George H. Tiffany of Waukegan, Friday night carried out an oft made threat, and committed suicide rather than go to the poor house.

Interest is lent the death by the fact that Tiffany was the last remaining scion of a family that in the sixties well represented Waukegan's wealth and aristocracy.

Tiffany's lifeless body was found Saturday morning by two small boys who saw it top of a heavy sea being beat against the beach, and gave the alarm.

The body was not disfigured with the exception of a few bruises. The pockets were heavily weighted with stones and indicate that Tiffany intended suicide.

The body lay face downward and was at first unrecognized, but identification was later made by Charles Gorham, conservator of Tiffany's fund and Frank Nolan, proprietor of the Boston House, where Tiffany lived.

Gorham, it seems had informed Tiffany that he would have to go to work or to the county farm soon, as the fund left by his mother was diminishing rapidly with payment of board and seventy five cents a week to Tiffany at the Boston House where he stopped in room 15.

Tiffany then borrowed enough money to start in as a book agent but Gorham stated that he believed the old temptation for drink had overcome the man. I will never go to the poor house he had often said.

Tiffany was a book worm. Of gentle parentage, gently nutured, he would never work. He had the reputation of having read every book in the Waukegan public library.

He was about sixty-five years old and was averse to human toil. He would never hold a job and insisted on being supported by others, a hard task because of his weakness for strong drink. He bore the reputation of having been at one time one of the best book keepers in the country but would presist in going on prolonged sprees. His former companions had long ago died or left him alone so that he was practically without friends.

CONGRESSMAN LORIMER STRICKEN

William Lorimer, Congressman from the sixth district of Illinois, was taken ill at Portland, Oregon, with blood poisoning, according to telegrams received in Chicago Sunday.

The seizure was the direct result of infection from a hypodermic needle and the collateral result of an affection from which he has been suffering for many months. For over a year Congressman Lorimer has been subject to fainting spells, induced by a misplaced artery immediately in front of his right ear. From these spells he had to be aroused by hypodermic injections, and it was from an infected needle that his blood was poisoned.

Mr. Lorimer owns a summer home at Fox Lake and is very well known hereabouts.

Microscopic Writing.

A remarkable machine made by a lately deceased member of the Royal Microscopical society for writing with a diamond seems to have been broken up by its inventor. A specimen of its works is the Lord's prayer of 227 letters, written in the 1,237,000 of a square inch, which is at the rate of 53,880,000 letters or 15 complete Bibles, to a single square inch. To decipher the writing it is necessary to use a 1-12-inch objective, which is the high power lens physicians employ for studying the most minute bacteria.

FATHER JACOB DEAD

Leader of Spirit Fruit Movement Succumbs at Wooster Lake

COMMUNITY IN MOURNING

Philosopher and Prophet of Wooster Lake Died at One Tuesday Following an Operation for Appendicitis

Jacob Beilhart, "Father Jacob," known the world over as the head and front of the Spirit Fruit movement at Wooster Lake, and the founder of half a dozen colonies the country over when men and women live without the formality of a marriage service, died at one Tuesday afternoon.

He died at the Lake county colony at Wooster Lake, "Spirit Fruit Farm" as it is called, where there are twelve inmates and the colony owns 300 acres of well tilled land.

The death followed an operation for appendicitis Sunday at the colony mansion by Dr. Foley of Waukegan. The operation was successful but the rupture of the appendix was too far gone to permit of treatment. He died at one Tuesday after intense suffering.

Beilhart in brief believed in marriages and the bearing of children with the same care as stock is bred and flowers are produced by Burbank.

A harness maker, he graduated into a Seventh Day Adventist preacher and later into an advocate of the so-called scientific marriage. His old harness maker's kit is still out at Wooster Lake and when in a rage he would frequently work at his old trade. He was generally beloved by the people of the vicinity as well as by the colony.

Beilhart took sick Thursday evening of last week and was operated upon Saturday evening. The colony members state that physicians pronounced it appendicitis, a rupture of the appendix, showing that Beilhart had neglected to give proper attention to his case in time.

The late leader was forty two years old, one of the gentlest and most unassuming of men, and had a host of friends outside his sect.

There are now twelve colonists at Wooster Lake. The dead man's divorced wife was not with him in his last moments. She is in Kansas with her children and secured a divorce from Beilhart years ago. This was the crowning sorrow of his life. He never recovered from it.

Driven from New Liston, Ohio, with contumely and threats of lynching, Beilhart come to Lake county and has resided here for three years unmolested. In fact farmers would have fought in his behalf.

CHILD DROWNED IN TROUGH

Last Saturday evening at Libertyville, Deputy Coroner Conrad presided over the inquest of Mary Nadelhoffer of that village.

The child had been playing beside a large trough of water that was used for cooling milk cans. She was left alone about fifteen minutes and when the parents returned, they found the child's body floating in the tank of water.

It is supposed that she had tried to get a piece of cardboard that was floating on the water and in so doing lost his balance and fell in. She drowned before they could reach her.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

The child was eighteen month of age.

Anticipation Worse Than Realization.

Men are so unanimously eager in the pursuit of things which, far from having any inherent real good, are varnished over with a specious and deceitful gloss, and contain nothing answerable to their appearances. Hence, it proceeds, on the other hand, that in those things which are called evils there is nothing so hard and terrible as the general cry of the world threatens.—Lord Bolingbroke.

Contrast in Wills.

If, as is stated, the will of the late duke of Devonshire contains nearly 18,000 words, it is certainly entitled to rank high among long-winded testaments.

Probably the shortest will on record was that of a Streatham gentleman, proved a few years ago, which consisted of the words: "All for mother, O. T."—Westminster Gazette.

TO INSTITUTE A NOW ZION

Voliva Fears City is Becoming Too Worldly and He Dislikes the Outlook

In connection with the statement made some time ago to the effect that Voliva had intimated that if things did not run more to his taste in Zion City that he would surely pack up and get out, taking his faithful followers to some other place where a new city could be started, it is said by residents of the city that Voliva is seriously contemplating this move at the present time.

Just what he intends to do is not known as he has not divulged his plans very thoroughly, but it is said that there is not much doubt but that he will decide to start a new city of his own in the near future.

Voliva, according to his own statement, is tired of the manner in which things are being conducted in Zion at the present time. He says that the whole affair is in a terrible mess and that it is no pleasure for him to try to straighten it out and that he does not intend to do so unless things take a different course.

One of the things that Voliva is seriously opposed to is to making Zion an open city. It is his desire to keep out all outside interests that might tend to open up the city to any other people than his own followers. This is the reason why he has fought so vigorously to have the long term leases retained in place of giving deeds to the property in the city as the receiver has started to do.

It is said that he has stated that the moment one outside concern is allowed to come into the city that everything will be lost and that all their efforts to preserve a model city will be at naught, for the coming of one person will open the way for many others and it will not take long until the city is as open as any other city.

For some time past it is said Voliva has been considering the advisability of closing up all the holdings of his followers for whatever they will bring and then move to some other location where they can do as they please—perhaps found a new Zion. Although he does not admit it, Voliva is as fond of power as was Dowie and he is longing for the complete sway formerly wielded by Dr. Dowie.

NATURAL GAS NEAR HARVARD

Workmen drilling a well on the M. J. Nolan farm, four miles northeast of Harvard, recently struck gas at a depth of 161 feet. It swept through a five inch pipe, carrying with it stone, dirt and water, making a roar that could be heard fully a mile away.

The flow was placed under control and piped into a barn on the farm. A test for the illuminating quality of the gas revealed a strong white light. The flow was even and indicated a pressure of 19 pounds to the square inch.

Hundreds of people have visited the farm to inspect the natural gas flow. The five inch casing pipe was removed to permit 300 visitors to hear the roar of the well. As when it first burst from the earth the well emitted a noise heard a mile distant.

Just what Mr. Nolan will do with this discovery on his farm is a matter that puzzles him. If it is only a pocket of gas, it will soon become exhausted, but if it should be a vein of natural gas, as many tell him it really is, he has something that is of untold value. Other tests of more duration will be made to see if the pressure can be lessened and to find out, if possible, just what it amounts to.

In order to test the well more thoroughly Mr. Nolan will soon have an expert there from the gas belt in Indiana. In the meantime he has started to drill another well on the farm, about four rods from the spot where he struck gas in the first well.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Jane Johnson, nee King, was born November 2, 1820 in New York State, and died November 13, 1908, aged 88 years and 11 days.

At the age of eighteen she was married to Mr. Wm. Johnson, a stone mason by trade. In 1849 she removed to Hickory, Illinois, where twenty years later her husband died. Since then she has lived at the home of Mr. Wilson King where she received the most patient attention during her illness. She was the last of a family of fourteen children to pass away.

The strong character and patient disposition which her life set forth at all times will long remain as fond recollections in the minds of those who were intimately associated with her.

May the hope of a future reunion, when our affections shall be united once more, be the comfort of those who mourn her loss. The funeral services were held Sunday morning at eleven o'clock and were conducted by the writer, G. W. Erb.

THUGS KILL VICTIM

Aged John Duffy of Highland Park is the Victim of Holdup Men

DIES OF INJURIES RECEIVED

Visited Grosse Point, Telephone Message Tells Relatives that He is Found on Sidewalk Near Death

John Duffy, aged seventy-three years, for years a janitor in one of the large Highland Park churches, died at his home early Sunday morning the victim of a most horrible attack by holdups.

Sunday, Nov. 15, Duffy left for Grosse Point. His father-in-law, Mr. Fred Greenslade, did not know that he had left until ten thirty that night, when he received a telephone message from N. Wagner, a saloon keeper, telling him that his son-in-law had been picket up near his saloon in an unconscious condition and that he was then lying on a cot in the Wagner building where he would be retained until care from home arrived.

Mr. Greenslede took an electric car for Grosse Point where he found his son-in-law lying on a cot in an unconscious condition and blood flowing from his right ear. At that time Wagner turned over to the aged father-in-law money to the sum of $35 50 and a receipt for $2 which had been paid.

A closed carriage was procured and the aged Highland Park resident taken to his home. His condition grew more critical daily and early last Sunday morning he died the victim of an alleged attack made on his life by holdups.

When questioned Mr. Wagner stated that two boys rushed into his saloon late Sunday evening and informed him that an old man was lying on the sidewalk a short distance from the saloon. Wagner picked up the man and carried him into the saloon where he remained until the arrival of his relative.

Deputy Coroner Edward Conrad was called into the case soon after Mr. Duffy's death. An inquest was started but adjourned until sufficient evidence could be procured to enlighten the jury as to the finding of Duffy and the assault.

At one o'clock Monday the 14th, Dr. Bergen of Highland Park was summoned to care for Mr. Duffy. Blood was oozing from his right ear and a bruise on the top of the head on the right side. Dr Bergen stated that there was a fracture at the base of the brain.

Sunday when the inquest was held, Mr. Greenslede testified that Mr. Duffy was known to have had one hundred and forty dollars in his pocket when he left home on the 15th of the month. One hundred and nine dollars of this amount has been accounted for. A shortage of thirty-one dollars still exists. It is feared that the old man was made the victim of a most brutal holdup. The inquest was adjourned until some later day this week when Wagner, the two boys who found the man, and other Grosse Point witnesses will testify.

A POST MARITAL ROMANCE

SYNOPSIS.

The Escapade opens, not in the romance preceding the marriage of Ellen Slocum, a Puritan miss, and Lord Carrington of England, but in their life after settling in England. The scene is placed, just following the revolution, in Carrington castle in England. The Carringtons, after a house party, engaged in a family tiff, caused by jealousy. Lady Carrington agreed to cut cards with Lord Strathgate, whose attentions to Ellen had become a sore point with Carrington. The loss of $100,000 failed to perturb her, and her husband then cut for his wife's I. O. U. and his honor, Carrington winning. Additional attentions of Lord Carrington to Lady Cecily and Lord Strathgate to Lady Carrington compelled the latter to vow that she would leave the castle. Preparing to flee, Lady Carrington and her chum Deborah, an American girl, met Lord Strathgate at two a. m., he agreeing to see them safely away. He attempted to take her to his castle, but she left him stunned in the road when the carriage met with an accident. She and Debbie then struck out for Portsmouth, where she intended to sail for America. Hearing news of Ellen's flight, Lords Carrington and Seton set out in pursuit. Seton rented a fast vessel and started in pursuit. Strathgate, bleeding from fall, dashed on to Prtsmouth, for which Carrington, Ellen and Seton were also headed by different routes. Strathgate arrived in Portsmouth in advance of the others, finding that Ellen's ship had sailed before her. Strathgate and Carrington each hired a small yacht to pursue the wrong vessel, upon which each supposed Ellen had sailed. Seton overtook the fugitives near Portsmouth, but his craft ran aground, just as capture was imminent.

For perhaps an hour the three vessels—the ship and the two small boats—held on, every moment bringing the little chasers nearer their great quarry. The Flying Star was making no especial effort at speed. Her royals were not yet set. She was proceeding on her voyage rather leisurely, in fact, and the others were in high hope, Carrington, especially. He thought that he at last had Strathgate where he could not escape, and if Ellen and Deborah were on that ship, they could not get away, either.

Into this peaceful nautical passage at arms, suddenly a new factor was introduced. That, of course, was Ellen's boat. Sheltered by the island neither Strathgate nor Carrington had noticed it until it suddenly shot into view. Now Ellen had a better wind than any of the other three. On a broad reach she came down on the big ship, as a sailor would phrase it, hand over fist. Her little boat was heeled over until the lee gunwale was awash and danced over the waves at a terrific pace.

Carrington saw the boat first. The reckless way in which she was being sailed caught his eye. It was too far for him to distinguish who sailed it, but he could tell that one of them was a woman. Something made him believe that it might be his wife. He gave the tiller to Haight, went up forward and stared hard. He would have given anything for a glass but there was nothing of that kind in the fisherman's boat and he had to trust to his unaided eyesight. The longer he looked the more sure he became that it was Ellen. His first impulse was to alter his course and head directly for her cutter, but he realized the moment he conceived the design that he could never intercept her, that his only chance was to overhaul the ship for which she was evidently making. He would thus lose no distance. If she did not intend to try to board the ship he could chase her afterward. The sailors on Strathgate's boat evidently pointed out the situation to him just as it had presented itself to Carrington, so all three held on.

Ellen had the shortest distance to sail, and a free wind, while the ship and the other two boats had a hard beat before them. There was nothing Carrington could do in fact but hold his course, yet with what a fever of impatience he continued his steady beat to and fro across the harbor. The only satisfaction he got was that with every tack he gained perceptibly on Strathgate. Indeed the boats passed each other close enough for conversation, but Strathgate had nothing to say to Carrington and Carrington controlled himself waiting for a convenient opportunity to express himself fully and unequivocally.

Both of them, moreover, were engrossed in the other boat. As the boats converged upon the ship, there was no doubt in Carrington's mind, or in Strathgate's, as to the identity of its passengers. The wind was getting stronger as they drew farther out into the open channel and the rate at which they were drawing nearer to the ship grew correspondingly slower. Carrington gritted his teeth in his vexation.

Still he held on. It was such a race as he had never sailed before. He held on although he knew that if the wind increased, his case was a hopeless one; held on, although he saw Ellen's boat in a few moments would intercept the ship; held on, when he saw that boat disappear on the lee side of the ship; held on when he saw the ship thrown into the wind to make a half board so that her way was practically checked; held on when two figures appeared upon the deck of the ship, and one, a boyish looking youth, walked over to the weather gangway and stood in full view of the approaching cutters, waved a hand, lifted a cap disdainfully and then disappeared; held on when he saw the boat which the two had abandoned, trailing astern at the end of a long line.

It was my lord's nature to hold on doggedly so long as there was the faintest possibility of success and beyond. And he kept up the chase of the big ship even though she suddenly covered with light canvas and, catching the full force of the breeze, greatly accelerated her motion. He held on even though a slant of the wind brought the breeze over the quarter of the big ship as she bore away on her course to the eastward. Carrington marked that with sudden surprise. The ship was not going to America apparently.

But it was evident, even to the most sanguine mind, that the game was up. Strathgate's boat was suddenly put about. The earl had abandoned the chase and was going back to harbor. Carrington was not so easily daunted, or perhaps he was more blind to the possibilities, for he strove to persuade the boatmen to continue the chase. He would have sailed to France, or to America, or to the end of the world, in whatsoever boat he was on so long as it would float. But the boatmen were not so minded. They were not provisioned for such a cruise nor prepared for it. Not even the incentive of unlimited financial rewards with which Carrington strove to dazzle them could make them agree to continue the pursuit. They were clamorous for putting back to Portsmouth, seeing plainly that they had failed. It was only the personal authority of Carrington's rank and station which kept them from summarily dispossessing him from the helm.

"I'll Kill You."

They were not quite ready for that when Strathgate's boat came rushing down toward them.

It was Carrington's opportunity. Balked in his chase of his wife, he determined to wreak his vengeance upon the earl. As the boat drew close to his bows, by a sudden sweep of the helm he sent his own heavier cutter crashing fair into it. The force with which he struck the other boat caused Strathgate's smaller vessel to hang on the bows of Carrington's boat. There was no loss of life, for Strathgate, scarcely worse for the disaster, followed by Cooper and the lad, scrambled aboard Haight's cutter.

White with passion Strathgate rushed aft, shaking his fist at Carrington, who sat laughing bitterly in the stern sheets. At Strathgate's back were Cooper, furious over the deliberate wrecking of his boat, and the boy eager to join in the fray.

"By heaven!" cried Strathgate, fiercely, "what did you mean by that?"

"I should think that my meaning was obvious even to you," says my lord, indifferently, although he was seething with anger to see his adversary within his reach.

"I don't know you, sir," cried Cooper, shaking his fist, "but you sunk my boat. You done it deliberately. It'll cost you a matter of £50."

"'Tis cheap at the price," answered Carrington. "Don't worry, my man. Just pipe down," he continued, as Cooper opened his mouth to expostulate. "I'm Lord Carrington. You shall be paid for your boat and something for your trouble."

"Payment is not enough to compensate me, Carrington," cried Strathgate, furiously.

"No," returned Carrington, "there's nothing that I might offer you that would pay you for what you've done, you dastard!"

"What do you mean?"

"You know very well what I mean, although I confess I have done some wrong to your powers of fascination," returned Carrington.

"And what, pray, may be the explanation of that statement?" queried Strathgate.

"I thought that you had run away with my wife; I thought so yesterday morning, that is; but now I see that she fled from you as well as from me."

"It's a lie!" cried Strathgate.

Both men were now so worked up and so blinded with passion that they did not care for the open-mouthed, open-eared audience which crowded around them.

"She did go with me," continued the runaway.

"It looks like it this morning. If she went with you, how did she come to be on yonder ship while you were here?"

Strathgate laughed evilly.

"If you must know it, my lord, your wife fled in my company."

"Damn you!" cried Carrington.

But Strathgate went on without heeding.

"An accident, a broken coach wheel stopped our journey. I rode on ahead to make arrangements for our passage to some happier land on yonder ship. Lady Ellen elected to go by water."

"I don't believe a word of it," returned Carrington. "If it were true," asked my lord again, "I ask you why you were not on the ship?"

"I overslept myself this morning, with the consequences which you see."

"You haven't seen the end of those consequences, my Lord Strathgate," continued Carrington.

"No?"

"Not by any means. We'll settle the question as to which of us is to live—"

"And have Lady Ellen?" interrupted Strathgate.

Carrington whipped out his pistol.

"Another word like that and I'll kill you without giving you a chance for defense."

"You threatened to murder me on the wharf an hour or so ago," and Strathgate, equably. "What prevents you from doing it now?"

"A thing of which you know nothing," answered Carrington.

"And what is that, pray?"

"A sense of honor."

"Indeed," answered the earl, "I had understood that your honor was in Lady Ellen's keeping."

The sweat stood out on Carrington's face. He locked his jaws until the muscles rose like whipcords. He was under the strongest possible constraint a man may put upon himself.

"My honor is in her ladyship's keeping," he said slowly at last, "and I am confident that she will never put it at the hazard of a blackguard like yourself."

This time it was Strathgate who gave way.

"You have another pistol at your belt. Give it to me. Take you one end of this boat and I the other. We'll see then who has the right to live and love."

"I dishonor myself," said Carrington, rising and abandoning the tiller, which was instantly grasped by one of the crew, "by meeting you in this way, but I'll do it. Here!"

He extended one of the pistols.

"I would prefer a choice," said Strathgate, not extending his arm to take it.

"As you will," returned Carrington, extending both of them to him. "You honor me in doubting my good faith," he remarked as Strathgate took one of the pistols. "Haight," said Carrington, "take your station amidship, out of range, and count three. There shall be no firing done by either of us until after the word 'three.' Are you agreed, Lord Strathgate?"

"Entirely," returned the other, stepping forward.

But Master Haight did not propose to have his vessel turned into a field of honor, which would be a field of blood. He interposed a vigorous objection.

"Gentlemen," he began, "I'll have no murder done here."

"There shall be none," said Carrington. "'Tis a fair duel with each man a chance for his life."

"I don't know about that, my masters," returned the sailor, "but I say this: This boat's mine, I'm the captain of it, and I'll have no fightin' aboard. Savin' yer honors' graces, it can't be done. You agree with me, Cooper? You, Jack? You, Ned?"

"Ay, ay," returned the others, closing about Haight and interposing between the would-be combatants.

BRIDE BALKED AT THE ALTAR.

Massachusetts Girl Refused to Wed Count and Denounced Him.

At St. Stanislaus' church, Fall River, Mass., Angela Pawlow, daughter of a merchant, absolutely refused to go on with the marriage ceremony that was to unite her to Basyl Mulinski, who says he is a Polish count and the owner of an estate in Russia.

The marriage had been set for eight o'clock. The church was crowded with friends and relatives. The bridegroom had answered an exultant "Yes" to the usual question, and the bride, in a white silk wedding dress with long veil and wedding bouquet, seemed to smile as Father Basin turned to her and asked: "Will thou take unto thee this man to be thy lawfully wedded husband?"

The bride dropped her hand from the arm of the bridegroom. She turned and faced the crowded church and answered loudly:

"No; he has been unfaithful to me before marriage. I will not marry him."

Then the girl ran down the aisle to her mother. The audience was dumfounded. Before it really appreciated what had happened the church officials had cleared the church.

Woman's Wiles.

"Yes," confided Mrs. A., "I find it very profitable to give my husband a dressing down occasionally. I gave him one to-day."

"But how is it profitable?" queried Mrs. Z.

"Why, he generally gives me a dressing up."

"Dressing up?"

"Yes; to get me in good humor again he promises me a new coat, a new set of furs and a new hat."

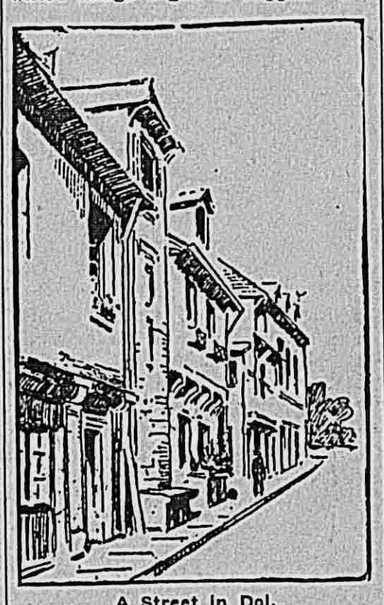

OLD TOWN OF DOL

BLOODY SCENES THERE IN 1793 VIVIDLY DESCRIBED BY HUGO.

Place in Brittany Whose History Dates from Days of Druids—Discovery of a Taurobolic Temple—Traces Left by St. Michael.

London.—Dol is one of the oldest towns in Brittany, and is certainly one of the most interesting in the department of Ille et Vilaine. It is quaint and small like its name and we can hardly realize that it was once an archiepiscopal see and the mise en scene of all sorts of historic happenings. The cathedral is the chief sight of the place, and though we may not agree with the local guide book that the building is a perfect marvel, we must admit that it is really fine, while the picturesque houses of the Grande Rue, the ancient fountain, the boulevards that surround the town just as the moat surrounded it in the days of long ago, the pretty, peaceful country on every side, all combine to make Dol extremely attractive and put us in the mood to enjoy its long and varied story. Dol has survived experiences both strange and tragic, and it is difficult to realize that its quiet streets, rarely disturbed by anything more alarming than the escapades of unruly pigs and geese and calves on a market day, and the shrill cries of excited peasants, were the scene of a frightful slaughter, when, in 1793, the "Chouans" defeated the revolutionary army commanded by Kleber, Marceau and Westermann. The combat is vividly described in Victor Hugo's "Quartre-Vingt-Treize" and a large canvas depicting the enrollment of these redoubtable volunteers can be seen in the Hotel de Ville.

Since the revolution, Dol may be said to have given itself up to slumbrous reminiscence, for nothing happens there now, but after all, a place where things began to happen when the ancient Druids slaughtered bulls on the top of Mount Dol and bathed their prostrate worshipers in their blood, can afford to rest on its historic laurels.

Mount Dol is a curious eminence, rising abruptly from the flat country surrounding the little town, and although tradition has long claimed that the Druids used to offer sacrifices thereon it was only a few years ago that the veritable taurobilic temple was discovered. There were two other slabs, each of them containing 27 funnel holes arranged in three rows, and beneath each altar was a small chamber, in which the candidate for baptism used to crouch, while the blood of the slaughtered ox rained down through the funnels upon him. It was such a baptism that was suffered by Julian the Apostate, in his desire to wash off his Christianity. As time passed on this Druid temple was used by the Romans for the worship of Diana, and later still it became a Christian church. Numberless prehistoric implements have been found on Mount Dol, and if you have the good fortune to be accompanied on your visit by a Breton you will be shown in the rock a footprint of the Archangel Michel and a deep scratch produced by the devil's claws.

The foundation of Dol was contemporary with the beginning of a monastery built by St. Samson in 548. The town became prosperous, and in the ninth century was chosen for the coronation of Nominoe, a king of Brittany, who did much to establish the independence of his native land. He was a great lover of freedom, and determined that not only his country, but his church, should be saved from French domination. Accordingly he summoned a council, at which he charged the French bishops with simony, forced them to admit their guilt and lay down their croziers. He then announced his decision to remain no longer under the jurisdiction of Tours, and he ended by creating seven sees in Britany, making Dol archiepiscopal, with control over the others. Such unheard of behavior was strongly opposed by France and the popes, but for 300 years little Dol remained a metropolitan see.

MONUMENT TO BALLOONISTS.

Memorial Recalling Fateful Siege of Paris When Aeronauts Were Heroes.

Paris.—In memory of the daring aeronauts who were the only means of communication between the city and the outside world when the Prussians were besieging Paris in 1871, a monument has been unveiled in this city. The monument takes the form of a balloon, with a group of symbolic figures about its base and a few birds flying around it, while the four pedestals that flank it are surmounted by groups of flying birds. Those aeronauts of the days of the siege were true heroes, for ballooning was then in its infancy and the men who ascended from the beleaguered and starving city took their lives in their hands, not only from the bullets of the Germans, but from the perils of the air. It was through them that the world learned of the awful straits to which the inhabitants had been reduced, and thereby took measures to relieve them.

Monument to Daring Aeronauts.

COUNT TOLSTOI

COUNT TOLSTOI AND HIS FAVORITE HORSE

THE COUNT PLAYING CHESS WITH HIS SON-IN-LAW

THE COUNT AND FAMILY ON THE OCCASION OF HIS 80TH BIRTHDAY

TOLSTOI'S HOME.

IN THE peasants of Russia had their way in the bestowing of a title upon Count Leo Tolstoi, he would be known as the Most-Beloved Leo Tolstoi. For there is no man in the world who has so many friends among the plebeians. Still Tolstoi is immensely wealthy, but that does not interfere with the great life work which has now nearly drawn to a close.

He is now 80 years old and while in good health at the time of this writing, his passing is but a matter of a few months or years. There are two sides to this great man. One is Leo Tolstoi, the artist, and the other—Leo Tolstoi, the man. As the artist he has written fearless works and the person or clique which has fallen under the scathing attack of his pen has seldom been known to boast of it.

There is no disputing his rank as the best known of living authors. Also he is the most generally read and recognized. He has attained the highest pinnacle of fame in the literary field and it cannot be said that he craved fame, either.

Best of all, Tolstoi is a friend of all Americans. The traveler from the United States, visiting Russia, is as welcome at the Yasnaya Polyana estate of Russia's great man, as if he were in his own home. America likes Tolstoi, too, for the author is the most democratic of men.

It is told of him that he spurns all worldly luxuries, even going so far as to have two tables set within his home at each meal—one resplendent with fancy edibles, while the other is stocked with simple food of the peasantry. Friends of his daughters and sons are always welcomed at the more prosperous looking board, while in the same room, Tolstoi, seated alongside of his wife, partakes of the necessities of life as an ordinary plebeian would. However, his children, having been brought up to the luxuries of life, are allowed to gratify their every whim, and he never allows his beliefs to step between them and happiness. In that respect he is an ideal father and he has been praised the world over for his broad-minded manner of treating others who do not believe as he does.

He is also what Americans call a "mixer," but in an entirely different sense. He meets the poor of Russia on their own level, and, except for the fact that he often scatters money at their feet, one would never suspect his wealth. There are no strings attached to Tolstoi's gifts, and thousands of beneficences to Russians in general, while the benefactor's name is a secret, are popularly laid at the door of this great man.

To be a friend of the Russian peasant up to a few years ago meant to be an enemy of the government. Upon several occasions Tolstoi's outcry against oppression of the czar's subjects has placed him behind the grimy walls of Slav dungeons, but he always returned to continue the work which he has so ably accomplished.

He is a social reformer of the first water and many of the acts of justice which the Russian government of late years has accomplished can be traced back to the work of Tolstoi.

As a literary artist the count is dead. His demise was a literary suicide, and it occurred 33 years ago, when he himself declared that his great creative works were unworthy and altogether evil.

Here is his own account of the split in his life:

"I had tried to test science and modern culture, and I have turned from them with a feeling of repulsion because of the inability of the first to solve the really important problems of life and because of the hollowness and falseness of the second."

By becoming chummy with the peasant Tolstoi declares he turned to frankness, simplicity and essential kindness, and he says he is to-day nearer mother earth than ever in his life. He declares the peasant, typically, is the ideal Christian. And thus since 1875 his writings have been almost exclusively polemic and didactic.

To-day Count Leo Tolstoi is a large, heavily-built man with unusually long arms, hanging loosely at his sides, with a wide nose, somewhat thick lips, small gray eyes, a head set on bulky but slightly stooping shoulders and a matted white beard. He possesses an air of strength that is found in few great men. The power that one finds in him is both mental and physical, and hence of the durable sort.

One of this man's great themes is the Sermon on the Mount. In this he has declared that he found five laws of God and he has made them his rules for faith and conduct throughout the later years of his life. These laws are summarized as follows:

Live in peace with all men and do not regard any man as your superior.

Do not make the beauty of the body an occasion for lust.

Every man should have one wife and every woman one husband, and they should not be divorced for any reason.

Do not revenge yourself and do not punish others because you think yourself insulted or hurt. Suffer all wrong and do not repay with evil for you are all the children of one father.

Never break the peace in the name of patriotism.

What Tolstoi has done for the people of his time in Russia is to be found in the dress, customs and habits of the lower classes of that absolute monarchy, but the critics say that right in his home his own teachings have had little effect. The answer which close friends of the count give to that assertion is that Russia's benefactor is too broad-minded to make his home a martyrdom and to inflict his beliefs upon his wife and children if they do not care to abide by them.

So while Tolstoi has spent his life or the greater part of it in preaching the doctrine of poverty and non-resistance, his children were reared on the great estate and from the first their lot was that of the aristocrat. They married "well," and are said to have completely renounced his views. It is told of Tolstoi that his wife has always managed to "slip a piece of velvet under her husband's crown of thorns just when he wishes to press it to his head most heavily."

That might be termed an inconsistency, but surely it is not the count's choice.

The work which some of the critics of other nations scoff at has reached from the thatched hut of the poorest peasant clear to the palace of the emperor himself.

For the sake of peace also, Tolstoi has accomplished a great work. The first Hague conference, which made history, would probably never have been called had it not been for the persistent gospel of this friend of the populace at large. Tolstoi saw that the eventual result of his teachings would be some sort of a world's peace gathering and he expressed gratification when Czar Nicholas called the initial session of the body over which the dove of peace was destined to perch.

No church in the world, it is recorded, carried out as petrified a ritual as that of the Slav. To-day, chroniclers tell us, there exists a tendency towards softening of the customs of religion in the czar's country. Teachings of simplicity by Tolstoi will be accorded the honor for this change if it is eventually wrought.

Humane treatment of prisoners and philanthropic moves of the immensely wealthy men of Russia are also laid to the work of the count. Tolstoi tasted the bitter cup of imprisonment himself and he was well prepared to go about that work with a zest born of actual experience.

Simple moral truths have been the axioms of Tolstoi throughout his later years and while skeptical persons call his ideas impracticable their defender could, were he not all too modest, point to the works which have followed in the wake of his unique, quaint gospel.

AN EARL REFUSED $150,000.

Singing Nobleman Not Tempted by a Music Hall Offer.

London.—It has been reported that the earl of Shaftesbury has been invited to go on the American music hall stage at the modest salary of $5,000 a week. This beats Harry Lauder. It is the largest salary ever offered to an amateur or even to an earl. Lots of the English nobility have found their way to the footlights, but few have possessed the qualifications of the young earl of Shaftesbury, whose fine tenor voice entitles him to recognition and big pay. Of course, the fact of being entertained by a real live lord should count on the playbills. Though his lordship has at present declined the flattering offer of a 30-weeks' engagement in America at the sum named, it is just possible that he may reconsider his decision.

The earl of Shaftesbury stands in the unique position—for a peer—of being wholly independent of filthy lucer; nor has he achieved a reputation through the channels of notoriety which other titled stage-struck people have followed. So far his record has been a clean one. He has held several important government commissions and army appointments. He was aide-de-camp to the governor of Victoria in 1898 and has been alderman and lord mayor of Belfast. His wife, the countess of Shaftesbury, is a sister of the duke of Westminster and lady-in-waiting to the princess of Wales. In fact, only quite recently, the earl and Lady Shaftesbury entertained the prince and princess of Wales at their beautiful estate, St. Giles' house, in Dorsetshire.

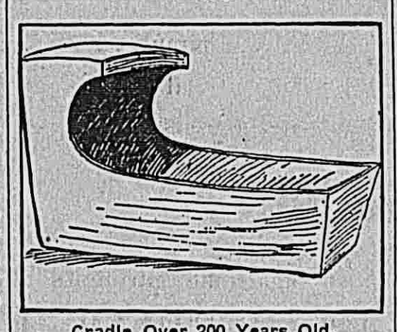

If the music hall stage captures the earl it will have one of the bluest blooded aristicrats who ever has appeared in public, and the $5,000 a week salary will be the merest pittance under the circumstances. One of the conditions offered by the manager who is bidding for Lord Shaftesbury's contract is that the earl's "dignity would be sustained in accordance with the noble vocalist's rank."

The earl of Shaftesbury's voice is deemed to be an exceptionally good tenor. He has only sung in public on one occasion—at the dedication of the new organ at the church of Shaston St. James, Shaftesbury, where he rendered with fine effect, "If with All Your Hearts," from Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and "The Soft Southern Breeze" from Barnaby's "Rebekah." He has sang a great deal in private and for charitable purposes.

furniture to be found in the old town. It is a homely, little, old-fashioned cradle, made of pine boards.

This cradle has been in the family for over 200 years, and according to the tradition which has been handed down from generation to generation it is the one in which William Phips, later Sir William Phips, was rocked when an infant.

Mrs. Hawthorne's ancestors were among the first settlers in Woolwich, and lived in the same locality where Phips was born. They went there from York in a schooner which they had built themselves, and brought up large families of children.

[illegible]OURT WAY

CANADA'S RESPECT FOR LAW AND ORDER THE SUBJECT FOR FAVORABLE COMMENT.

Those who have visited Canada are always impressed with the strict observance that is given to the laws of the country, and the order that is preserved everywhere. The editor of the Gazette, of Fulton, Nev., recently paid a visit to Western Canada. He was so impressed with the conditions that he saw everywhere, that on his return home he was inspired to write as follows: "Reverence and respect for law is a dominant characteristic of the Canadian people. Wherever one goes in Canada, whether east or west, the law is supreme. The law is obeyed because it is law, seemingly, and not because violation carries a penalty. Canada enforces the law and makes every law effective. No country is more free than Canada. In name Canada is a dependency of the British Crown. In fact, it is almost a third republic. All its taxes are voted, collected and expended by the Dominion and the provinces. The nominal head of the Government is the Governor General, appointed by the English Crown. Practically his only authority is to veto the acts of parliament, which he scarcely ever exercises. Canada gives nothing to the support of the English government or the English king. She gives England the advantage in trade regulations and tariff laws, and in return receives the protection of the British army and navy. Canada enjoys the protection without sharing in the expense.

"The sale of liquor is strictly regulated. None but hotel-keepers may obtain license to vend the stuff, and before a license can be secured an applicant must prove good character and provide twenty rooms in his tavern for the accommodation of guests. The bar-rooms close at 7 o'clock Saturday evening and remain closed until Monday morning. The schools and churches in Western Canada excite admiration. Though new, Western Canada is not godless. The finest buildings in every town are the churches. Next come the school houses."

Turning to the wheat fields of Western Canada, the editor of the Laurel (Neb.) Advocate of Sept. 17th says: "I have often thought that the reason that the characters of Charles Dickens are so impressed upon the minds of his readers is because he dwells upon them so long and describes them so minutely that by the time one has waded through his long drawn out stories they are so burned into his brain that he can never forget them. It was this way with the Canadian wheat fields. Had we only seen a few the memory of them might have worn away in time, but a long drawn out experience such as we had is sure to leave an uneffaceable impression. Never while we live shall we forget the Canadian wheat fields. They call it the granary of the British Empire, and we don't blame 'em. Nobody who has seen these wheat fields can wonder at their enthusiasm." It is worth while to record that these fields have now been harvested, and in many cases yields as high as forty and fifty bushels per acre have been marketed, while the general average has been away above 20 bushels per acre. Oats and barley have also done well, and the profits, the prices of grains being high, have paid the entire cost of the farms of many a farmer. There is now 160 acres of land given away, in addition to the 160 acres that the homesteader may purchase at $3.00 an acre. Particulars of this as well as the lowest railway rates will be given by the Canadian Government Agent.

They Don't Speak Now.

"You love long rambles in the country?" asked the girl in the white sweater.

"Yes, indeed," responded the young man in the green hat with the purple band and buckled shoes. "When I go out in the country all nature seems to smile."

"Gracious! I don't blame her. It is a wonder she don't laugh outright."

It isn't so difficult to strengthen a weak Stomach if one goes at it correctly. And this is true of the Heat and Kidneys. The old fashioned pay of dosing the Stomach or stimulating the Heat or Kidneys is surly wrong! Dr. Shoop's first pointed our this error. "Go to the weak or ailing nerves of these organs", said he. Each inside organ has its controlling or "inside nerves" When these nerves fail those organs must surely falter. The vital truth is leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommed Dr. Shoop's Restorative. A few days test will surely tell! Sold by J. H. Swan.

Archery by Mail.

Playing chess by cable is a thoroughly familiar feature of that game in this part of the world, but playing active outdoor match games by mail is a new thing in the way of sporting contests. Out in Atchison, Kan., there is an archery club that recently played a match game with the Chicago Archery club by mail, each team shooting on its own grounds and mailing the scores to their opponents on the following day. And they found it exiciting at that.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

JOHN D. IS QUIZZED

SHARP CROSS-EXAMINATION OF STANDARD OIL CHIEF.

IMMENSE PROFITS SHOWN

Earnings of the Octopus in 1907 Were About $80,000,000—Witness' Memory Concerning Rebates Is Not Good.

New York. — For over five hours Friday John D. Rockefeller, witness for the defense in the government suit to dissolve the Standard Oil Company, faced an unceasing fire of questions from the federal counsel, Frank B. Kellogg, and when adjournment was taken until Monday the head of the oil combine was still being cross-examined on the charges that the company in its early days accepted rebates to the disadvantage of its rivals.

Mr. Rockefeller's cross-examination will probably not be concluded until late Tuesday, as Mr. Kellogg made it known that he would inquire into every detail of the company's business.

Enormous Earnings Shown.

The enormous earning power of the oil combination was sharply brought out in Friday's hearing when Mr. Rockefeller, after stating that the Standard had paid dividends amounting to $40,000,000 in 1907, said it had earned as much more and that this was added to the company's surplus, which was stated by the government's counsel to be $300,000,000. It was further stated by Mr. Kellog that the company within the last eight years had earned nearly half a billion dollars.

The course of Mr. Rockefeller's testimony in the hands of government counsel ran not so smoothly as on Thursday when he told his story under the direction of friendly counsel, but the rapid fire interrogations of the prosecutor were always met with unshaken imperturbability and readiness to answer except when, as he explained:

"It is quite impossible for me to remember after 35 years. I do not recall."

Remembers Only One Rebate.

Mr. Rockefeller was questioned closely regarding rebates which the Standard was charged with receiving, but with the exception of the agreement with the Pennsylvania railroad, which, Mr. Rockefeller explained, gave the Standard a rebate because it effected an equalization of oil shipments, he could not recall any other rebates, though he thought it was likely that he might have heard of it at the time.

The president of the Standard Oil Company when he learned that the government counsel would not be able to conclude the cross-examination by Saturday night, suggested an adjournment until Monday, which was agreed to by counsel.

Cross-Examined by Kellogg.

New York. — With the telling of the story of the first score of years of the industrial development of the Standard Oil Company, the testimony of John D. Rockefeller, president of the oil combine, on direct examination in the federal suit to dissolve the Standard Company, was brought to an unexpected close Thursday afternoon.

The head of the Standard told of the processes and causes of the company's growth up to the trust agreement of 1882 and, after he identified the parties to that agreement, counsel for the defense announced that Mr. Rockefeller had concluded his direct testimony and requested an adjournment until Friday.

Friday found Mr. Rockefeller on the witness stand under the sharp fire of the cross-examination of Frank B. Kellogg, special assistant attorney general, prosecuting the case for the government. The cross-examination by the government will be confined to the period from 1862 to 1882, except where the testimony has direct bearing on developments in the company's affairs in its later period.

GAS EXPLOSION IN BROOKLYN TEARS UP A STREET.

One Woman, Five Children and About Nineteen Workmen Killed—Remarkable Escape of Four Laborers.

New York.—Twenty-five persons are believed to have lost their lives in an explosion of gas which tore up a great section of Gold street, Brooklyn, Friday. It is definitely known that 15 persons were buried under the hundreds of tons of earth and timber that were thrown into the air by the explosion, and ten more persons are reported as missing.

The exact number of dead cannot be determined yet, for those working to recover the entombed bodies must dig through 50 feet of dirt, rock and a tangle of pipes and timbers.

The explosion occurred in a 50-foot deep excavation that had been made in Gold street between York and Front streets where a water main was being laid. The gas main recently sprung a leak and in a manner unknown a spark came in contact with escaping gas.

Immediately there was a terrific explosion that lifted the surface of the street for half a block in both directions and hurled dirt, paving stones and debris into the air.

Gold street was crowded with school children when the explosion occurred and that scores of children were not killed or injured was remarkable. A woman and three children were almost opposite the excavation when the earth crumbled under their feet and they were swept down into the hole under tons of wreckage. Two other children were on the opposite side of the street when the sidewalk caved in and they lost their lives.

Only four of the men working in the excavation escaped, and their escape was remarkable. These men were digging near the opening of a four-foot sewer and the force of the explosion blew them to the entrance of it. Arthur Strand was hurled farthest in and he pulled the other men after him.

Water from the broken main began to pour into the sewer and the four men, in danger of being drowned, ran to the river where there was an outlet to the sewer.

Destructive Forest Fires.

Evansville, Ind. — The forest fires in Dubois county, Indiana, that have been raging for the past four days, were started by several schoolboys, who burned a pile of leaves in the woods near the Kyana public school. The fires have spread over hundreds of acres of valuable timber lands and are still burning. Farmers are fighting to save their homes from destruction.

The drought in southern Indiana has prevailed for 174 days and is the worst in the recollection of the oldest inhabitants.

FOUR HAVE FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE IN DANVILLE, PA.

Officials Believe Spread of Contagion Will Be Checked—Cattle Shipments Are Stopped.

Washington.—Alarming results following the outbreak of a contagious foot and mouth disease in New York and Pennsylvania, causing those states to be quarantined against interstate shipments of cattle, etc., were shown Friday in advices which reached Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, stating that four children in Danville, Pa., had contracted the disease.

A rigid investigation is in progress in Danville and elsewhere to determine whether others have become similarly affected. The officials believe that the spread of the contagion will be checked, although admitting that the situation is grave and will require energetic and concerted action by the state and federal authorities.

New York. — Cattle shipments to foreign ports from New York and Philadelphia were brought to an abrupt close Friday by the cattle quarantine established in this state and in Pennsylvania on account of the outbreak of the foot and mouth disease. The quarantine does not affect ports outside of New York and Philadelphia, except as to cattle from the two states affected by the ruling. Western cattle may still be shipped abroad from either Boston or Baltimore.

Buffalo, N. Y. — Business at the stock yards here was completely tied up when at a meeting of the East Buffalo Livestock association Friday night the members adopted a resolution calling on the railroads to cancel all orders for shipments of cattle or swine to or through Buffalo. The association formally approved the stringent measures of quarantine used by Chief Melvin of Washington and Commissioner Pearson of the state department of agriculture. Two cases of foot and mouth disease were found Friday on a Niagara county farm and one infected herd in Erie county was destroyed.

London. — Confidence is expressed here that the energetic action of the American officials soon will stamp out the foot and mouth disease. Officials are not alarmed concerning the possibility of a beef shortage. In this connection John Burns, president of the local government board, called attention to the rapidly growing consumption in England of home-grown cattle.

Sad Tragedy in New York.

New York.—Lying side by side on the floor of their apartment in the Bronx, the bodies of Charles A. Walters, an aged veteran of the civil war, and his daughter, Emma, 40 years old, were found Sunday. The room was filled with gas and all the cocks of a gas stove were turned on. It is the theory of the coroner that Miss Walters died first and that her death was due to heart disease. Later, the coroner thinks, the father entered and upon beholding the body of his daughter, committed suicide.

500 LIVES ARE IN DANGER.

Two Steamers in Serious Collision Near New York.

New York.—The lives of more than 500 persons were imperiled Sunday when the fruit steamer Admiral Dewey, inward bound from Jamaica, crashed into the steamer Mount Desert, outward bound from Bay Ridge for the fishing banks.

The Admiral Dewey, coming suddenly out of a fog bank, struck the Mount Desert almost amidships, opening a gash in the fishing vessel that extended from the upper deck to the water's edge.

There were 450 passengers, including 20 women and six children, on the Mount Desert and the Admiral Dewey carried 45 passengers. In addition there were the crews of the two steamers. Panic immediately followed the collision and it was due to the prompt action of Capt. Davidson of the Dewey that a catastrophe was averted, for the passengers on the fishing steamer began piling over the guard rails of that vessel and leaped for the deck of the Admiral Dewey. Capt. Davidson kept the vessels together until all the passengers had got aboard his steamer.

The injunction was granted upon the application of Clarence Brown, general counsel, and James S. Brailey, Jr., president of the United States Telephone Company, which is the independent long distance telephone company operating in Ohio and adjoining states, in a suit brought by that company.

THIRTY LIVES LOST

TWO TORNADOES SWEEP OVER WESTERN ARKANSAS.

PROPERTY LOSS IS GREAT

Many Towns Partly Laid in Ruins by the Furious Storms—Details Are Slow in Coming In.

Little Rock, Ark.—Two tornadoes, one north and the other south-bound, swept over west Arkansas Monday afternoon, destroying many lives and much property. All means of communication were destroyed and only indefinite reports have come from the districts visited by the tornado. From reports received at least thirty lives were lost. The property loss will reach hundreds of thousands of dollars.

One tornado started in the extreme southwestern part of the state and went north, following the second tier of counties from the western boundary line. The other started in the northwestern corner of the state and went south.

The counties through which the tornado passed are Lafayette, Columbia, Miller, Pike, Howard, Hempstead, Montgomery, Yell, Pope, Johnson, Franklin and Carroll.

According to advices received, the storm was at its height when it swept through Piney, a German settlement on the Iron Mountain railroad between Knoxville and London. Late reports from Russellville, the nearest town with which communication can be had, are that between twelve and twenty persons were killed and about thirty injured at that place.

Five lives are also reported to have been lost ten miles from Mulberry, where one of the tornadoes did great damage.

The storms also visited Ozark, whence nothing has been heard yet; Lodi, near Texarkana, where three buildings were destroyed and a woman injured; Lewisville, in Lafayette county, where great damage was done to timber and fences, and several buildings destroyed; Berryville, where eight people were injured but not seriously, and a number of residences were wrecked; Palmos, where great damage is reported, and Jethro and Wallersville, which towns are reported to have been completely wrecked.

Some reports stated that nothing had been left in many districts, that homes, timber, buildings, fences and everything had been uprooted and blown to bits.

A report from Fort Smith states that it seemed that 25 lives are lost in towns outside of Piney and Mulberry. This dispatch declares the destruction of the town of Cravens was complete. Four persons were killed, two fatally injured and eight missing at that place.

IMITATION DUEL IS FATAL.

One Lad Shot Dead by Another in Michigan.

Marquette, Mich.—While playing duel on a hunting trip, Robert Warren, 13 years old, of Marquette, was shot and killed by Robert Miller, 15 years old. At the coroner's inquest it developed that the boys played at duelling, pretending to shoot each other as a practical demonstration to younger companions of how affairs are settled on field of honor. They pulled the trigger of their guns, supposing the weapons to be empty. Miller's contained a shell, and Warren fell dead, shot through the head.

CUTS OFF A WOMAN'S HEAD.

Shocking Murder Committed by Man at Carona, Kan.

Pittsburg, Kan.—Following a neighborhood quarrel at Carona, 20 miles south of here, Hezekiah Stradler, a carpenter aged 20 years, slashed Mrs. Butts, his next-door neighbor, with a razor, cutting her head entirely off. The murdered woman was housekeeper for Stradler's cousin, who lived next door. Trouble started between Stradler's wife and Mrs. Butts, following an old neighborhood feud.

Jefferson City, Mo.—Gov. Joseph W. Folk Monday afternoon decided that, under the Missouri statute, all the electoral votes of the state should go to William H. Taft. PE-RU-NA AS A LAST RESORT

MR. WM. F. VAHLBERG.

Mr. William F. Vahlberg, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes:

"One bottle of Peruna which I have taken did more toward relieving me of an aggravated case of catarrh of the stomach, than years of treatment with the best physicians.

"I had given up hopes of relief, and only tried Peruna as a last resort.

"I shall continue using it, as I feel satisfied it will effect an entire and permanent cure.

"I most cheerfully recommend Peruna to all who may read this."

Peruna is usually taken as a last resort. Doctors have been tried and failed. Other remedies have been used. Sanitariums have been visited. Travel has been resorted to.

At last Peruna is tried. Relief is found.

This history is repeated over and over again, every day in the year. It is such results as this that gives Peruna its unassailable hold upon the people. We could say nothing that would add force to such testimonials as the above. That people who have had catarrh and have tried every other remedy available, find relief in Peruna, constitutes the best argument that could be made.

Taft's plurality, 173,318. Deneen's plurality, 23,318. Majority for bond issue, 107,891.

Gov. Deneen Claims Control.

Gov. Deneen claimed he had won his fight to secure control of the senate organization in the next general assembly.

He claimed 20 sure supporters, a sufficient number to control the Republican caucus, and an additional six "friendly" members who would support his bills.

If he can control 26 members, the governor can put through the senate any legislation he may desire, as the 26 comprise a constitutional majority.

The governor also is claiming control of the next house.

ONE KIDNEY GONE

But Cured After Doctors Said There Was No Hope.

Sylvanus O. Verrill, Milford, Me., says: "Five years ago a bad injury paralyzed me and affected my kidneys. My back hurt me terribly, and the urine was badly disordered. Doctors said my right kidney was practically dead. They said I could never walk again. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. One box made me stronger and freer from pain. I kept on using them and in three months was able to get out on crutches, and the kidneys were acting better. I improved rapidly, discarded the crutches and to the wonder of my friends was soon completely cured."

NO SKIN LEFT ON BODY.

For Six Months Baby Was Expected to Die with Eczema—Now Well—Doctor Said to Use Cuticura.

"Six months after birth my little girl broke out with eczema and I had two doctors in attendance. There was not a particle of skin left on her body, the blood oozed out just anywhere, and we had to wrap her in silk and carry her on a pillow for ten weeks. She was the most terrible sight I ever saw, and for six months I looked for her to die. I used every known remedy to alleviate her suffering, for it was terrible to witness. Dr. C—— gave her up. Dr. B—— recommended the Cuticura Remedies. She will soon be three years old and has never had a sign of the dread trouble since. We used about eight cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment. James J. Smith, Durmid, Va., Oct. 14 and 22, 1906."

A MATTER OF HEREDITY.

Agnes Had Only Followed In the Footsteps of Her Mother.

Even if there had not been kernels of rice on her hat and a glad light of love in her eye any bachelor could have told that she was a bride. And the manner in which she spoke to her husband showed they had not been married long.

A man in the passing crowd spied the couple, and rushed over to greet the bride.

"Well, well, Agnes," he cried, extending his hand, "you don't mean to say that you're married?"

"Why—why, yes," the girl stammered, vivid color mounting to her cheeks, as she tried to defend her novel situation. "You—you know, it runs in the family. Mother was married, too."

Always Exciting.

"I visited E. R. Thomas and found him doing well after his motor accident," said a member of the Automobile Club of America. "Thomas, as usual, railed against our bad roads.

"He said that a friend who lived in the country had been in to see him.

"The country is all right in the summer," Thomas admitted, "but in the fall and winter don't you find it dull?"

"'Dull?' said the other. 'No, indeed. Why, out our way some motor car or other gets stuck in the mud every night.'"—Philadelphia Bulletin.

NEW LIFE

After one suffers from acid dyspepsia, sour stomach, for months and then finds the remedy is in getting the right kind of food it is something to speak out about.

A N. Y. lady and her young son had such an experience and she wants others to know how to get relief. She writes:

"For about fifteen months my little boy and myself had suffered with sour stomach. We were unable to retain much of anything we ate.

"After suffering in this way for so long I decided to consult a specialist in stomach diseases. Instead of prescribing drugs, he put us both on Grape-Nuts and we began to improve immediately.

"It was the key to a new life. I found we had been eating too much heavy food which we could not digest. In a few weeks after commencing Grape-Nuts I was able to do my housework. I wake in the morning with a clear head and feel rested and have no sour stomach. My boy sleeps well and wakes with a laugh.

"We have regained our lost weight and continue to eat Grape-Nuts for both the morning and evening meals. We are well and happy and owe it to Grape-Nuts." "There's a Reason."

MIX FOR RHEUMATISM

The following is a never failing remedy for rheumatism, and if followed up it will effect a complete cure of the very worst cases: "Mix one-half pint of good whiskey with one ounce of Toris Compound and add one ounce Syrup Sarsaparilla Compound. Take in tablespoonful doses before each meal and at bedtime." The ingredients can be procured at any drug store and easily mixed at home.

One of the Three.

"Well, there were only three boys in school to-day who could answer one question that the teacher asked us," said a proud boy of eight.

"And I hope my boy was one of the three," said the proud mother.

"You bet I was," answered Young Hopeful, "and Sam Harris and Harry Stone were the other two."

"I am very glad you proved yourself so good a scholar, my son; it makes your mother proud of you. What question did the teacher ask, Johnnie?"

"'Who broke the glass in the back window?'"

A Terror to His Kind.

A certain congressman is the father of a bright lad of ten, who persists, despite the parental objection and decree, in reading literature of the "half-dime" variety.

"That's a nice way to be spending your time," said the father on one occasion. "What's your ambition, anyhow?"

"Dad," responded the youngster, with a smile, "I'd like to have people tremble like aspen leaves at the mere mention of my name."—Lippincott's.

Not Always What They Seem.

Prof. and Mrs. Hadley were on a train bound for New York, where Yale's president was to speak before a national convention. He made use of the hour and 20 minutes he spent in the train by rehearsing his speech in a low voice, using his hands to emphasize certain passages.

A kindly matron who was sitting directly behind Mr. and Mrs. Hadley, and who had been watching and listening, leaned forward and, tapping Mrs. Hadley on the shoulder, said, feelingly: "You have my sincere sympathy, my poor woman; I have one just like him at home."—Success.

An Intelligent Child.

A small boy was playing with the scissors, and his kindly old grandmother chided him.

"You musn't play with the scissors dear. I know a little boy like you who was playing with a pair of scissors just like that pair, and he put them in his eye and put his eye out, and he could never see anything after that."

The child listened patiently, and said, when she got through the narrative:

"What was the matter with his other eye?"—Bystander.
